Aboriginal Allied Health Network Forum

The Aboriginal allied health forum is a collaboration between the Health Education and Training Institute (HETI), the Ministry of Health (Workforce Planning & Talent Development Branch) and Indigenous Allied Health Australia (IAHA).

The forum will be held at the National Centre of Indigenous Excellence (NCIE) which is located on Gadigal country in the Eora Nation.

The aim of the forum is to support the education, cultural and career development needs of existing and emerging Aboriginal allied health staff. The forum facilitator is Justin Noel, a Dhungutti man and principal consultant, Origin Communications Australia.

Eligibility

The forum is open to Aboriginal allied health professionals, assistants, technicians and cadets; mental health trainees and clinicians currently employed within NSW Health.

NSW Health employs the following professions as Allied Health under the NSW classification system:

- | | | |
|-------------------------|-------------------------------|---------------------|
| • Audiology | • Nuclear Medicine Technology | • Podiatry |
| • Art Therapy | • Occupational Therapy | • Psychology |
| • Counselling | • Orthoptics | • Radiation Therapy |
| • Dietetics & Nutrition | • Orthotics & Prosthetics | • Radiography |
| • Diversional Therapy | • Pharmacy | • Sexual Assault |
| • Exercise Physiology | • Physiotherapy | • Social Work |
| • Genetic Counselling | • Child Life Therapy | • Speech Pathology |
| • Music Therapy | | • Welfare |

The purpose of the network is to support Aboriginal allied health professionals, Aboriginal allied health cadets, and allied health assistants/technicians employed by NSW Health. As part of the partnership agreement with IAHA, the network will also include Aboriginal mental health clinicians and trainees.
