SUPPORT THE 2026 IAHA ULTIMATE STUDENT LEADERSHIP CHALLENGE (USLC)

IAHA is inviting you to support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students to participate in an exciting clinical and cultural exchange of knowledges, perspectives and skills.

DATE: 27-29 November 2026

VENUE: TBC - Boorloo (Perth)

INTRODUCTION

The IAHA Ultimate Student Leadership Challenge (USLC) is a three-day cultural and professional leadership program that is designed to support students in the development of a wide range of skills and leadership in a health context. Working collaboratively, the students will bring their cultural and professional knowledges to the fore as they develop a management plan in response to a complex case study. The challenge will empower them and fellow health student peers to lead in providing holistic, culturally safe, and multidisciplinary care.

The USLC program is underpinned by IAHA's Cultural Responsiveness in Action Framework and Theory of Change which act as tools to support all people working with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, families, and communities in a strengths-based and culturally responsive way.

The USLC is a learning experience for Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander health students designed to educate the nation's next generation of health care professionals in building on their clinical and cultural capabilities.

HOW THE CHALLENGE WORKS

IAHA USLC coordinators allocate participants into multidisciplinary teams of between 4-6 students, with a diversity of disciplines, gender, cultural connection, and experience represented. Teams are announced in the first gathering. The groups will undertake some team building exercises, and receive a complex Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander case study. Teams will work together over the course of the weekend, with the assistance of mentors including professional and cultural mentors, to prepare a patient care and recovery plan based on the case study. Teams are encouraged to bring their clinical and cultural lenses to the case study and will also need to consider the context of the individual, their family, community, and service landscape to provide holistic and comprehensive care.

Teams will each have seven minutes to present their plan to an expert judging panel. Following the presentation of their case management plan, each team will be given an extension question and have five minutes to present. This represents a real-life scenario in health care when there is a 'curve ball' while providing comprehensive and holistic care. Teams are assessed throughout the whole process on their collaborative leadership, role clarification, culturally safe and responsive care, client and family centred practice, interprofessional communication, team functioning, ethics and their understanding of the social and cultural determinants of health. Considering the complexity of the case study, teams have access to highly qualified profession-specific mentors and cultural mentors for a specified allocated time throughout the challenge, therefore teams need to be strategic in asking focussed questions to help develop the plan.

The two teams that demonstrate a mastery of teamwork, leadership and communication in the heats will proceed to The Final! The Final is showcased in the IAHA National Conference program. The final two teams get to demonstrate their case management plans to conference delegates and stakeholders.

The IAHA USLC is an opportunity for participants to apply their cultural and clinical skills in a practical manner, develop their leadership skills, network, and get feedback from experts in a culturally safe space to ultimately become a better clinician.
